DETAILED ACTIONElection/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election with traverse of Group II, claims 16-19 and 31 in the reply filed on 7/21/05 is acknowledged. Applicant amended claims 20 and 30 such that they depend from claim 16. As such, Applicant requests to have claims 16-31 examined. In response, though claim 20 now depends from claim 16, it is the position of the Examiner that claims 20-29 recite manipulative method limitations, which would require a search that is not coextensive with the article claims. Thus, the restriction between the textile, yarn and method is maintained. However, newly amended claim 30 will be grouped with claims 16-19 and 31 and thus examined on the merits. The amended restriction is as follows.

- I. Claims 1-15, drawn to a textile fabric, classified in class 442, subclass 59+.
- II. Claims 16-19,30 and 31, drawn to a yarn, classified in class 428, subclass 364+.
- III. Claims 20-29, drawn to a method for making a textile fabric, classified in class 427, subclass various.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Art Unit: 1771

3. Claims 16,18,30 and 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.
4. Claim 16 is indefinite because it is not clear what Applicant means by “fluoropolymer coating immediately adjoining the synthetic fiber or filaments”. It is not understood if the fluoropolymer is just a coating or coating that adhesively joins the individual filaments of the yarn.
5. Claim 18 is indefinite because it is not clear to the Examiner what is meant by fluoropolymer fluorinated.
6. Claims 30 and 31 are indefinite because it is not clear how the recitation of “for producing” the claimed end products is further limiting. In other words, Applicant has only recited potential uses rather than final products.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

7. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

8. Claim 16-19,30 and 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dixon et al., US 4,020,233 in view of Jahn, US 5, 397,629.

The patent issued to Dixon et al., teach surface fluorinating synthetic fibers in the form of yarns and textiles to impart soil and stain resistance as well as water absorbitivity (abstract, column 1, 25-32, column 6, 50-60, and column 7, 1-5). Dixon et al., does not explicitly teach further coating the yarns with a fluoropolymer coating composition, however, the patent issued to Jahn teaches a fluoropolymer coating composition used to coat sewing yarns and textile sheets (abstract). Jahn specifically teach that the fluoropolymer coating composition is free of conventional adhesion promoters (column 2, 30-38). Jahn specifically teaches that the fluoropolymer coating composition provides a good bond between the individual filaments of the yarn (column 4, 21-40). Jahn teaches providing textile fabrics such as knits, wovens, and non-wovens (column 3, 61-68). Jahn specifically teaches that the fluoropolymer coating provides high slip, chemical resistant and soil repellant characteristics (column 6, 25-34). With specific regard to claims 30 and 31 Jahn does not specifically teach forming any of the claimed final product structures, however, it is the position of the Examiner that the textile fabrics taught by Jahn could function in the claimed manner since Applicant has not set forth any other distinguishing product limitations.

Art Unit: 1771

Therefore, motivated by the desire to provide a textile yarn having the combination of high slip, chemical resistance, soil repellency and absorbitivity it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to coat the surface fluorinated yarns of Dixon et al., with the fluoropolymer coating composition taught by Jahn.
